

I have been loving XM radio practically from the moment it became available. I travel by car a lot, it is so wonderful to be able to tune into local weather and traffic and not have the problem of trying to find the radio station that has it, at the right time of day. I am paying for this service and resent special interest group interference with my ability to get this information. If what I need were available on "free" radio, I wouldn't be paying extra for it.
